study is Luke's understanding of the place of Israel in God's plan. The investigation will center around exegetical work on the Magnificat (1:46-56), the Benedictus (1:67-79), and the Simeonian Blessing (2:28-35). An attempt will then be made to trace the themes of these sections regarding Israel as they are advanced and fulfilled in Luke-Acts.

Why, then, is Israel not being redeemed, as the Old Testament promised? Why is the church a mainly Gentile body? Such questions cut right to the heart of the gospel, for if the gospel could not truly be seen as the continuation of God's plan from the Old Testament, then it would cease to be the "gospel of God" (cf. 1:2).
